EDITORS: NIKKI BLAHUT AND TREA STEELE

WELCOME BACK!

We hope that you've all had a restful and enjoyable break.
Congratulations on completing first quarter successfully, Cohort 15.
Cohort 14, time to take the final quarter by storm!

THE PULSE

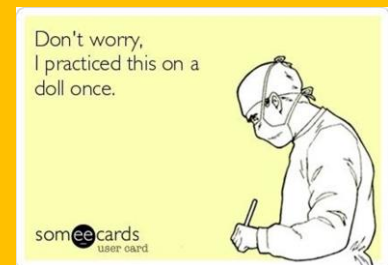

NSNA CONFERENCE RECAP:

Once a year, the most influential participants in nursing practice come together in order to guide future nurses and their educators. The National Student Nurses Association provides a convention one time per year in different parts of the country. Orlando was home to the NSNA convention this year. Luckily for those that were able to make it, ECPI students and professors did not have to travel far. The convention features different hospitals from around the country, nursing recruiters and houses specialty talks given by some of the nation's nursing leaders. LMSNA President, Ashlee Harris, stated that the opportunity presented "a great opportunity for networking with potential employers and facilitating additional learning beyond our classroom and clinical experience". Make sure to be on the lookout for the next convention as it may help to propel your future nursing career forward!

SENIOR RESEARCH PROJECTS:

This month, the senior students presented their nursing research projects for the juniors. With an open mind, the students researched many different aspects and ideas within the scope of nursing practice. Along well-designed poster boards came sweet treats to grab the audience's attention, mind boggling research and plenty of knowledge.
